Abstract: Through relevant literature research, interview and research, this paper discusses the relevant problems, analyzes and points out that student cadres and Party members have some practical problems, such as insufficient learning theory, insufficient personal sacrifice and dedication, and their ideals and beliefs are not firm. It points out the reasons: Party members' own factors such as their low enthusiasm for learning political theory, weak initiative, low awareness of self-discipline and self-improvement in daily learning, and weak awareness of actively serving teachers and students; The growth of student cadres and Party members in Colleges and universities is uneven, there is no standardized long-term mechanism for student party members, and the organizational strength of student party branches needs to be strengthened and improved.

Keywords: New era; Student Cadres; Exemplary role

Party members among college students in the new era are a group with vitality, knowledge and innovative spirit. They are also the reserve of our country's party members and cadres. Making our party's cause develop into a reserve force is the medium strength of our country's socialist construction. The exemplary role of student cadres and Party members is mainly reflected in the group of college students whose thoughts are higher than ordinary students, in which their professional skills are higher than ordinary students, and their dedication and dedication are higher than ordinary student cadres. The exemplary role of student cadres and Party members in the new era is to have a firm political position, develop comprehensive quality and the spirit of dedication and sacrifice to serve student organizations. Since the new era, with the great attention of the Party Central Committee, although some achievements have been made in the publicity of party history and Party Construction in Colleges and universities, especially in the personal comprehensive quality, management system, branch construction, team construction and development of student cadres and Party members. However, there are still many problems to be solved on how to give full play to the exemplary role of student cadres and Party members in Colleges and universities.

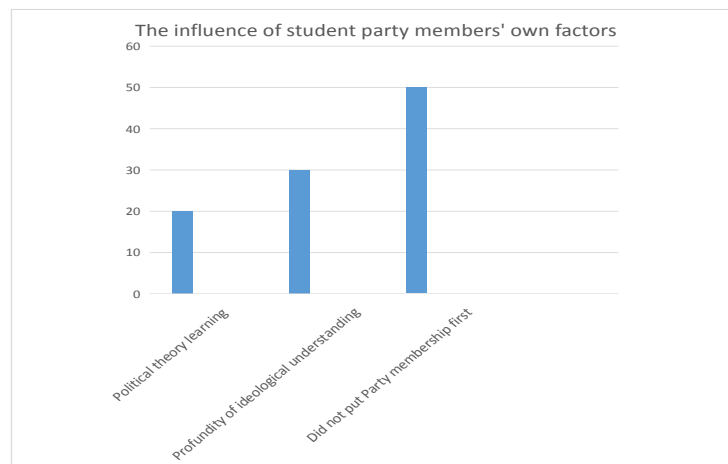

Fig. The influence of student party members' own factors

In the new era, the exemplary role of student cadres and Party members is not fully played, which is restricted by many factors. We find out the problem according to the relevant data analysis, which is the basis of the next relevant research. This paper analyzes the reasons from three aspects: student cadres, Party members, colleges and universities themselves and social education.

1. The influence of student cadres and Party members' own factors

The study of political theory of Party members, especially student party members, is a compulsory course for Party members and a source of vitality and related driving force for them to play a pioneering and exemplary role. The main reason why the exemplary role of student cadres and Party members in Colleges and universities is not fully played is that the study of political theory is not profound and thorough, and can not be understood at the same time. The importance of relevant theoretical learning cannot be reached. Marxist theory and Mao Zedong thought system are broad and profound, and some discussions are difficult to understand, which requires great patience and perseverance. Some student cadres and Party members pay little attention to their study, lack in-depth thinking, and have little effect. Some student cadres and Party members did not follow up their studies in time. Xi Jinping's theory of socialism with Chinese characteristics is updated with the development and changes of China's times. Some student party members are not concerned with the party's innovation theory. They can not accurately grasp the party's political theory, and learn political theory from a thorough and profound perspective. Their personal ideals and beliefs are not solid enough to give full play to the exemplary role of student party members.^[1]

2. Student party members and cadres lack a fixed learning mechanism

The lack of a fixed and long-term learning mechanism is the main reason why the theoretical learning of college student cadres and Party members is not profound and thorough. Relying on secondary colleges, majors and grades, the Party branch of colleges and universities gathers student cadres and Party members of various majors. The scope of political theory learning of student cadres and Party members in Colleges and universities is limited, which mainly depends on the collective learning and decentralized learning of their own branches. The effect of student cadres and Party members bringing political theory learning outside the branches is not obvious. Due to the different majors and courses of student branch Party members, the time for organizing student cadres and Party members to study collectively will be greatly reduced, Without centralized learning, the effect is not obvious, the long-term and effectiveness of theoretical learning is difficult to be guaranteed, the learning content is "one-time", and the learning effect will be greatly reduced.^[2]

3. Lack of profundity of ideological understanding of student cadres

When many college student cadres regard joining the party as a goal and goal, Chairman Mao said in his speech at the Yan'an Literature and Art Symposium, "Many party members have joined the party organizationally, but they have not joined the party completely ideologically, or even not at all. Those who have not joined the Party Ideologically simply do not know what proletarian ideology, communism and the party are." Joining the party organizationally is only once in a person's life, and joining the Party Ideologically is permanent. Becoming an excellent college student Communist Party member is a learning, dynamic and endless thinking process, and should be a lifelong goal. If the joining of student cadres in the party is not completed, it should always be in progress. Influenced by western countries Under the influence of the social utilitarian environment, some student party members in Colleges and universities regard joining the party as a completed, and personally think that the study of the party's political theory is just a breakthrough for joining the party.^[3]

4. Student party members do not rank party membership first

Whether in the revolutionary period or in the new era, in the face of difficulties, as a CPC member, we must rush ahead. However, in the peace period of the new period, some college student party members and cadres have problems such as weak identity consciousness. Only each party member has a party in his own heart, takes the party's theory as the basis of his thought and the cornerstone of his belief, and puts his identity as a CPC member When a college student, especially a student cadre, goes through various training stages and becomes a full Party member, they have entered the senior grade. Due to the pressure of graduation, they have to start paying attention to the future direction of their life, such as employment, postgraduate entrance examination or going abroad, or through various internships in the society to improve their future Therefore, after becoming a full Party member, some student cadres and Party members will pay more attention to their own development and efforts in other aspects, thus slackening the study of our party's relevant theories and giving full play to their vanguard and exemplary role.

5. Conclusion

Now most of the college students and their cadres are only children. After they are admitted to their own university, their pressure decreases, including their schoolwork pressure and ideological pressure. They have a large amount of free time and money given by their parents. They have just separated from the great pressure of the college entrance examination and the high-intensity management of their parents Student party members are still in the primary stage of self exploration, and the behavior of self-management and self-discipline has not been finally formed. They are easy to indulge themselves and relax and slack in life and study. Many college student party members are easy to lose their habit and consciousness of self-discipline and develop some lazy behavior habits, such as smoking and drinking, which is far from the requirements of Party members .
